Rev. Cletus Dirksen Author Of Discourse In Current Columbia

The Rev. Cletus Dirksen, C.P.P.S., Professor of Economics at St. Joseph's, wrote a commentary on the encyclical, "Rerum Novarum," entitled "The News That's Going 'Round" which appears in the March issue of Columbia.

Father Cletus Dirksen

In the article Father Dirksen tells of the condition of the world at the time of the issuance of Pope Leo's timely document, of the reactions of the world to it, and of how, with the beginning of the third decade of the twentieth century, there is a general trend among Catholic authors toward "the reconstruction of society along Christian postulates and ideals."

Father Dirksen closes the commentary by emphasizing the necessity of accepting the encyclicals for the saving of civilization.

Male Lead

RALPH PARKER, senior and president of the Columbian Literary Society, will play the male lead in the society's production of "Richard of Bordeaux," March 17. Parker has previously appeared on the College Theatre stage in numerous roles.

Annual Literary Contests Have Wednesday, April 15, Deadline

Literary minded St. Joe men are hard at work to meet the April 15 deadline announced for both the Alumni Essay contest and the Mary J. Pursley Memorial award.

The Mary J. Pursley Memorial Award for Creative Writing will again be offered this year. Entries, in the form of short stories, dramas, and poetry, may be submitted any time before midnight, April 15. A fifty dollar prize will be awarded to the winning contestant.

The entry must be entirely original. Anything that has appeared in Measure may not be submitted. Short stories should have no less than 1,000 words. One-act plays are preferable in the drama category. In the field of poetry, nothing less than two poems of any type with an aggregate of at least 16 lines, will be considered.

All college members are eligible, and a person may enter any number of compositions. Three copies of each entry must be submitted. These copies must be typewritten with double spacing on one side of the page.

The judges will be chosen by the English Department in conjunction with Father Pursley.

Students of both the College and the Academy may compete for the Twenty-Five Dollar Alumni Essay Award. Any subject, written in essay form, and consisting of from one to three thousand words, will be accepted. The contestant must use a pen name and submit his real name in a sealed envelope.

Three copies of the material must be handed in on or before the closing date, April 15.

Dr. Frank First Speaker On CMC Lecture Program

A series of lectures has been planned by the College Civilian Morale Committee for the remainder of the present semester, the first to be given by Dr. Theodore Frank Saturday evening, March 7, at 8 p. m. in the College theatre. Dr. Frank will speak on some phase of Austrian conditions.

All the students are urgently asked to attend these lectures, which will last approximately one-half hour. After each lecture there will be opportunity for questions and discussions. Also planned are short, two-reel movies, procured from the War Department, dealing with phases of defense.

Science Club Inducts Five New Members

Five students have been accepted into the Albertus Magnus Society. They are sophomores Marty Timlin and Jerry Kosinski, and freshmen John Terveer, Kay Kennedy and Jim Bernard. Any science students who have not as yet applied for membership are encouraged by the officers to do so in the very near future.

At the meeting Friday night Al Hurley gave a talk entitled "War and Medicine." The speaker enumerated the various plagues that ensue during war and gave the causes of each. He also stressed the importance of the battlefields of war to the field of medicine.

Commerce Club Will Travel To Chicago For Field Trip

Commencement Date Set For Afternoon Of May 16

Commencement for the 1941-1942 scholastic year will be held Saturday, May 16, on the St. Joseph's College campus.

Baccalaureate Mass will be in the morning. Graduation exercises will be held in the afternoon.

His Excellency, Bishop John F. Noll, of Fort Wayne, will be present for both the morning and the afternoon ceremonies.

Sanguinist Press Show Has Over 250 Visitors

Putting on a display of everything from pamphlets to magazines and from pictures to books, the Catholic Press exhibit sponsored by the Sanguinist Club for Catholic Action ended Sunday after a three-day exhibition of Catholic Literature in the main parlors in the administration building.

Most outstanding features of the exhibit were the tree of Catholic Literature and authors, a group of pictures of Saints prominent in education, and a collection of books published by the Bruce Publishing Company.

Also on display were tables of pamphlets and small booklets, Catholic college newspapers and magazines, and a rack of Catholic Diocesan newspapers.

Tomorrow morning (Thursday) thirty-five members of the Commerce Club and three of the faculty will settle into a chartered bus to journey to Chicago and visit several of the city's business houses. The members of the faculty making the trip are the Rev. Albert Gordon, C.P.P.S., moderator of the club; the Rev. Francis Hehn, C.P.P.S., and Dr. Theodore Frank.

Leaving immediately following breakfast, the group will arrive in Chicago about ten o'clock. Shortly thereafter they will begin a tour of the Northern Trust Co., the Federal Reserve Bank, the Board of Trade, and finally the Stock Exchange.

At a general meeting of the club, held last Monday night, the date for the forthcoming annual banquet was set at March 16. Mr. J. Donnelly, of La Porte, Ind., sales manager of Bastin-Morley Co. and chairman for all heating companies in Washington, D. C., will be invited as guest speaker.

Set Prom Date For April Monogram Club Announces

The date for the prom has been set by the Monogram Club at Saturday, April 18. Plans are moving ahead regarding the rest of the necessary arrangements.

Class Adoration Will Be Feature, Climaxed By Noon Benediction

Beginning with a Solemn High Mass at 8:15 and continuing into the afternoon, Sunday, March 8, National Prayer Day will be observed on the Collegeville campus.

The Blessed Sacrament will be exposed at the Mass. As arranged by the Rev. Norman Koller, C.P.P.S., dean of students, the following half-hours of adoration will be observed:

Seniors, 9-9:15; sophomores, 9:30-10; freshmen, 10:30-11:00; religious, 11-11:30; juniors, 11:30-12; sacristans, 12-12:30.

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and reposition will be held at 12:30.

Evening Holy Hour

The united Holy Name societies of the Lafayette Deanery will in future hold a monthly Holy Hour in the different parishes. The first of these will be observed at St. Joseph's from 7:30 to 8:30 Sunday evening, March 8.

Father G. N. Sullivan, pastor of St. Patrick's church, Oxford, is chaplain of the united Holy Name societies of the deanery. Msgr. A. J. Copenolle, pastor of St. John the Baptist church, Earl Park, is dean of the Lafayette deanery. Father Camillus Lutkemeier is director of the college Holy Name organization.

Raleigh Club To Meet

Election of officers will take place at the March 9 meeting of the Raleigh Club.

Keys will also be awarded members who are eligible, and plans are being made to provide a short entertainment.

Bindery: Little-Known Place

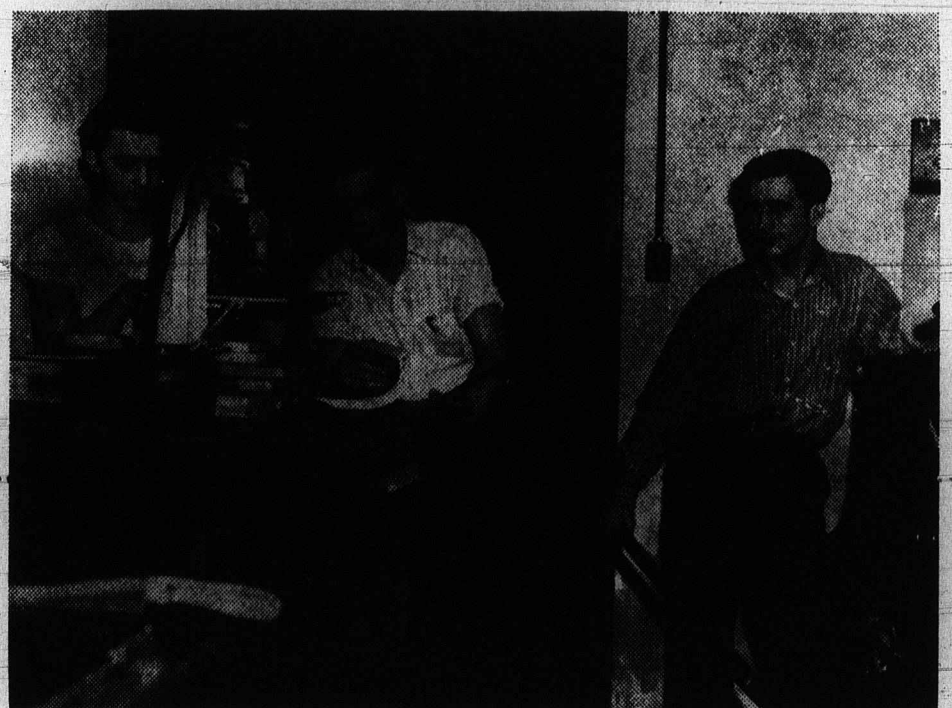

One of the least heard of departments of St. Joseph's, yet one of the most efficient and serviceable is the college book bindery which is located directly beneath the college library.

Binding periodicals for the library is the main function and purpose of the bindery which is managed by three students—Louis Appelhans, Raymond Zupkie, and William Haney—and supervised by the Rev. Clarence Schuerman, C.P.P.S., head librarian.

A set process is employed to bind periodicals. The individual editions of a periodical are taken to the bindery where they are first broken apart and then sewed into one edition. This edition is shouldered, or placed in a press (the bindery has five small presses and one large one) where its back is rounded out with a hammer until each section overlaps; the back is then glued and covered with a strip of cloth which is also glued on. The book remains in the press for a day, allowing the glue to dry. Meanwhile, a cardboard cover is measured and cut by a large cutter. This cardboard is then covered with buckram, a chemically treated linen, which is glued on.

Books Are Then Stamped

From here the cover goes to the Kwikprint printing press, where the Bill Haney, Louis Applehans, and Ray Zupkie operate the College bindery—one of the little-known places on the campus.

entry of the periodical is stamped on the cover's back in gold. The Kwikprint press was obtained last August under the Rev. Gerard Lutkemeier, C.P.P.S., former librarian, along with a set of sample type. Three more sets of type have since been added. This system of printing entires is more efficient than the old method by which the entires were printed on the back by hand with white ink.

With the entries printed the cover is now glued to the body of the book and again placed in the press for a day to dry and to prevent the cover from warping.

The binding of the book is now completed and the book is ready for the reader.

Last week, in fields of operation the world over, men in uniform skirmished with other men. They took pot shots at one another, charged and plunged with bayonets. Others were at war on the high seas, or skidding down in power dives to bomb supply dumps and strafe troop movements. This was War.

At the same moment in a crowded theatre in Chicago's Loop area a muffled shot rang out. A young girl of high school age slumped over in her seat. A shadowy form ran down the aisle untouched, and escaped through one of the various exits. This was War also. Another side of war, far deadlier in its consequences than bayonets and power dives. And on the silver screen, a mystery film unfolded its story for the millionth time.

It is not for any man to say what was the immediate, specific reason for the awful crime, no more than it is for any man to say what was the immediate reason for the present world conflict. To get at the very bottom it would be necessary to study the background of the assassin's environment, education, and physical fitness.

Through generalities, however, it is possible to comment on the probable conditions under which the crime was committed. With the advent of motion pictures, and the so-called Public Enemy, crime and criminals have been constantly before the people's eyes. Comic strips have shown the sordid side of life and often bordered on the verge of glorifying crime. A certain sadistic gloom has settled itself on a large number of young men and women in our day.

To the college man all these things may seem distant and removed. They may seem of no importance. But today's college man will be a man of the world tomorrow, and it is not too remotely impossible to suppose that he will be faced with just such a situation. What will be his reaction?

The college man who has neglected philosophy—particularly the branch of philosophy called ethics—may find himself in difficult straits when faced with the situations life offers. A man who is well grounded in philosophy, however, will have some creed, some rule by which to guide his actions.

This, then, must be resolved: To secure a solid foundation in philosophy, particularly ethics, no matter what our field of endeavor may be. The doctor needs a strict code of morals, as does the clerk, the lawyer, the newspaperman, and the factory worker. When the individual works out his own personal, correct code of living, a code based on objectivity, the influence of that code will permeate the community, the state, the nation, and eventually the whole world. Then, and only then, will there be an end to war.

Following the Flickers

With Dick Schreiber

Every year the editors of the Harvard Lampoon sit themselves down and make out a list of "worst" pictures, actors, actresses, and directors. Of course everybody from Samuel Goldwyn down just laughs lightly and they shrug their shoulders collectively. But we are of the suspicious kind.

It seems to us that the Lampoon never fails to select the most luscious actress on the "It" list for attack. Naturally the actress responds with coy verbs and the fight is on. We keep remembering Fred Allen and Jack Benny. It may be, though, that we are just born of a suspicious family.

Now if someone really wanted to put down on paper all the worst actors and actresses, all the worst pictures of the year, he would have a terrific task. In the first place, he would have to see every show produced from horse opera to whodunits. Then he would have to tabulate all the worsts. Then he would have to write them up. And after they were written he would have to go in hiding because most movie fans would be out looking for him. Ardent movie fans are that way.

RITZ: Friday & Saturday—Bob Young and Marsha Hunt, she is one of the better young actresses, come to the screen in a tale about "Jo Smith American." A great writer, Paul Gallico, penned this story, which is enough to win any writer's recommendation. Legion Rating: A-1.

RITZ: Sunday, Monday, Tuesday—A smash hit of last year's legitimate stage, "Skylark," with Claudette Colbert, Ray Milland, and Brian Aherne, is a story of a domestic sideshow. It has comedy and slapstick and makes an enjoyable afternoon. Legion Rating: A-2.

PALACE: Sunday, Monday, Tuesday—"Captain of the Clouds," with Jimmy Cagney and Dennis Morgan, is a story about the Royal Canadian Airforce. A tale about the heroes of the sky is always full of good, though stilted, dramatic sequence, and photography has a field day. You'll find this flicker full of the same stuff that started back with "Hell's Angels" and has been going strong ever since. Legion Rating: A-2.

RITZ: Wednesday and Thursday—Here's another mystery thriller(?) entitled "The Night of Jan. 16th," that stars Ellen Drew and Robert Preston. We liked the double-talk sequences in this cinematic offering. They were done by Cliff Nazarro. Legion Rating: A-2.

Back again at the old grind of typing out a weekly column on the tripewriter. . . . But now we are reverting back to our old policy of 'nothing but the truth'—For sorry to say the last two columns bordered very close to fiction . . . due to reasons beyond our control . . .

To start off let's nominate this freshman boy, Vernon, for the best Pepsodent plug in school . . . And we hear, Mr. Schlereth, that the 'happy little motor is still putting' . . .

St. Joe's walking quiz kid, Jack (Pound Ball) Bivenour, is from what we hear, an authority not only on sports but also on the art of enveloping one with his vibrant personality . . . He turned it on during the Raleigh Club dance and as a result is expecting a letter any week now . . .

R. X., better known as Doc, of the Smith, Hurley & ——— combo . . . is said to have come across a new intramural sport in the 'pigeon roost' of the Ritz . . . T. Allen Brier's bosom buddy, Jumpin' Johnny Risch, has reached his peak . . . No longer do the artistic scarfs surround his esophagus, but rather the stately lines of his neck are better shown with a two tone shirt with a yellow collar . . . While we think of it, a nice round of something or other is due to John Callahan (the one from Lowell) and his cohort, Dick Rowland . . . These two have a story to tell if you're able to corner them—it's about 'Gubatz' and 'Tisenor' . . .

Bob Cavey, the captain, has someone 'Rocking his Dreamboat' in the metropolis . . . Or haven't you noticed his 'wanda do this, wanda do that' complex . . .

There's something we'd like to know . . . What is the full story behind Jimmy Lavelle's not having a certain ring? O'Reilly won't talk, so what has Lavelle on O'Reilly?? So what??

And so the time comes for the so longs, etc. . . . But before we go a reminder to Mauri Guttsell—"Remember Pearl Harbor" . . . Be seen' ya . . .

What Was Your Longest Moment? Reporter Asks

By John Ford

"What was the longest minute in your life?"

It was believed that this question would receive some interesting answers from St. Joe students. Here they are. You are to judge their interest.

Leonard Bruno comes through with this story: "When I was 13 years old, I jumped off the high dive at a local swimming pool for the first time. When I hit the bottom of the pool my foot got caught in the drain. I shall never forget that next minute. Finally a guard pulled me out."

Art Hoctor relates this tale: "I was driving a car when it skidded and hit a buttress along the side of the road. Half of the car was on one side, half on the other. If it would have gone one way we would have gone over the high embankment. Finally my three companions and I managed to balance the car in the right direction."

Dick Jones spent his most anxious minutes waiting for a debate's judge to render a decision.

Vince Giese told this: "My high school, Central Catholic, was playing St. Leo for the Catholic Championship. The score was tied going into the final minute . . . which was really long." Incidentally, Vince's team won.

"My longest minute was spent not long ago. I was in a pillow fight in my dorm when the prefect walked in. He did not say anything immediately, and as I stood there waiting for him to say something I was in real agony." This was the experience of Gene Ryan.

Another experience that might be considered embarrassing as much as anything else is related by Joe Wolford. "I went into one of the nicer hotels in Louisville to get a hair cut. The cost was seventy-five cents, but I did not know until later that I had but fifty. There were about fifteen people in the place and everyone seemed to be staring at me. I did all sorts of apologizing and felt that I wished the world would end."

So indeed there have been those longggg minutes. If you happen to have one let us hear from you. This might offer some real entertainment before we are finished.

Senior Sketches

By John Feicht

For a long time Dan (Doc) O'Loughlin has had the idea in his mind that he wants to be a doctor. With this in mind, Dan entered St. Patrick's high school in his home town of Kankakee, Illinois. After his graduation from high school, Doc enrolled at St. Joe as a pre-medical student. During these four years in Collegeville, Dan has had his ups and downs but has always quelled them by thinking of some day being an M.D.

Now hefty Dan O'Loughlin is in the final semester of his senior year. He has sent in his application to medical schools, but as yet is undecided which one he will attend. Then too, there is another thing which may try to sidetrack Doc from his chosen profession—the draft. Doc, however, feels certain that he will be able to complete his education for his doctor's degree before the army gets him.

At St. Pat's high school Dan played several years of football. Being a pre-med student he had to forget the sport at St. Joe. Bowling is one of Doc's chief recreational pastimes. He gets plenty of wood with his speed ball too. The Raleigh Club rooms is where Dan spends most of his spare time on the campus—billiards being his favorite game. Most of Doc's weekends are spent in Kankakee.

Mrs. Dirksen III

Fathers Aloys and Cletus Dirksen, President of St. Joseph's and Economics Professor respectively, spent last weekend with their mother at the hospital in Celina, Ohio. Mrs. Dirksen is confined to bed with a broken hip which she suffered last Thursday when she tripped and fell.

CLOSE CAGE SEASON WITH VALPO U.

Puma Prints
By Don Casey

Baseball has become the general topic of current campus conversation since the release of the most extensive schedule in the history of St. Joe. The twenty-three game menu has added zest with the announcement by the Athletic Department that the freshman eligibility rules have been waived because of the uncertain conditions of the times.

Two weekends of operation in the Big Ten camps of Indiana and Purdue make the bill of fare most attractive. Rumors have it that the frosh plan to make the vets hustle to hold down their positions. More power to you, youngsters!

Senior Mauri Gutsell will begin getting his chucking arm in shape after the Valpo game. Mauri has a present record of eleven victories and five defeats behind him. A major league career is one of his secret ambitions.

Speaking of baseball... Brother Dave, the loyal Buckeye, says the Cincy Reds will win the National League pennant, and if the army doesn't grab too many of the players, the Reds will meet the Yankees in the World Series.

Boxing has become one of the feature attractions in the Puma sports activities. Each home show attracts a greater crowd and each match shows a better class of fighters. Let's hope that the game remains of the caliber that gives it this position in our interests.

Professional boxing is governed strictly by State laws and medical requirements. Boxing commissions are created to see that bouts are carried on in an ethical manner. A special section of each state boxing commission is the medical department. This department is required in the interests of the fighters themselves. Rigid physical exams during the training period and before fights determine whether or not a fighter is fit to go into the ring.

If professional fighters who are in the game for the high stakes it has to offer are willing to submit to such medical requirements, is it not logical to suppose that the same measures should be taken in the collegiate game?

Nothing serious has happened in the local ring as yet and we sincerely hope that nothing will in the future. But in the interests of all collegiate boxers, this department would like to see that medical examinations prior to each fight be introduced as a requirement in the college rules.

The presence of a (professional) doctor at the actual bouts to determine when matches should be stopped, to minister to injuries, etc., is another asset that the college sport could use.

Youngstown Victors 52-51; Lose To Carroll, Beat Loras

Youngstown College won a heart-breaker from the St. Joe five in the Steel City, 52-51, on Tuesday evening, in the last game of the eastern trip of the Puma squad.

Bernie Hoffman, flashy St. Joe forward, captured scoring honors for the evening with 20 points. Leo Magus and Bergman scored 19 points each for St. Joe's opponents.

The game was a nip and tuck battle all the way. With four minutes to go the St. Joe boys took a 5-point lead. Then the Ohioans began clicking, and with a minute and a half to go, the score read 48-48. Two rapid field goals by the Youngstown boys sewed up the game. The opponents sank three more free throws than St. Joe, which was the deciding factor in their victory.

St. Joe cagers were defeated, 55-47, by a superior John Carroll University squad in Cleveland Monday night.

The Blue Streakers and Pumas played tight ball all through the first stanza and were tied three times during this frame. The score was 26-23 in favor of the Clevelanders when the first half ended.

Bernie Hoffman netted 14 points; Nobbie Walsh, 11. These boys led the Collegevillers in scoring honors. Francesconi of Carroll, big threat of his team, tallied for 19 counters. Dempsy, playing a fine defensive as well as offensive game, scored 10 points for the opponents.

St. Joseph's, 39 Loras College, 33

St. Joe's basketball team rung down the curtain on their 1941-42 home season in the local fieldhouse last Friday night with a 39-33 victory over Loras College in the cleanest tussle played here this year. Only 11 personal fouls were called all evening and only 3 of these were against the Pumas. No player from either side fouled out.

The Pumas led throughout most of the first half and were in front at the intermission, 21-15. A Loras rally, spiked by the deadly shooting of Tierney, a slender red-headed sub, put the Duhawks within one point of the Pumas, 26-25.

Wisniewski and Tierney exchanged baskets jumping the score to 28-27. Then the Pumas started a victory drive. Good under-the-basket teamwork on the part of the Dienhart five enabled them to increase their advantage to 36-27. Tierney was good for two more Loras baskets. However, he seemed to be the only one of the scrappy

Purdue Boxers Face Puma Pugs In Local Fieldhouse

Local boxing fans will get a chance for a fistic treat Monday night, March 9, as the St. Joseph's squad takes on Purdue University's Golden Gloves team for the second time this season. Purdue edged out a 4-3 win over the Puma pugs at Lafayette last Saturday night.

McKenna, Stenger and Bob Cavey will seek their second wins against the Big Ten fighters. These lads were the Puma point counters in the first match.

Seeking revenge for decisions rendered against them at Lafayette will be Chauncey Cavey, Bill Carlos and Jack Seifert. Charley Klapheke, who suffered a K.O. in the Purdue show, will be out to OK his record on Monday night.

Beat Valpo By 4-2 Score

The fighting men of St. Joseph's College pounded out their second 4-2 decision over Valparaiso's boxing team in the Puma fieldhouse last Wednesday night. St. Joe emerged the victor by an identical score when the two teams met in the Uhlans' gym earlier in the season.

Wasting no time, the Pumas waded right in and took the first four fights in impressive style to clinch the meet. Jim McKenna, Bob Cavey, Iowans who had an eye for the target. Final score, 39-33.

Mauri Gutsell, only graduating member of the St. Joe squad this year, turned in a nice ball game in his last Collegeville performance. He led both clubs in scoring with 13 points, which was 1/3 of his team's total.

and Jack Stenger took three-round decisions from their opponents, and Dick Kindig was so far ahead in the third round that the referee had mercy on his opponent and awarded Dick a TKO.

Have Two Exhibition Bouts
Two exhibition bouts came next; one between Vasco Luchi and Paul Wherle of St. Joe, and another staged by two Valpo pugs in the 175-pound class.

A wrestling show with grapplers Nails Stodola and Chester Skrabacz and referee Cowboy Resetar taking turns tossing each other about added a touch of comedy to the evening.

Valpo Wins Two
Valpo came back to win the last two fights of the evening at the expense of Charley Klapheke and Jack Runchey. Klapheke outweighed ten to fifteen pounds, lost a three-round decision, and Fritz Mueller, the captain, fighting his fourth year for Valpo, was given the nod over Jack Runchey in one of the best fights of the evening.

Runchey, fighting his first inter-collegiate bout, came back after being floored in the first and second round to drop his man with a right hook in the final heat. The rally was a little belated to overcome Mueller's huge lead, however.

Uhlans Seek Revenge For Earlier Defeat In Friday's Meeting

Coach Dienhart and his Pumas will invade Valparaiso Friday evening for their final tilt of the current season when they meet the Uhlans of Valparaiso University.

Mauri Gutsell, St. Joe's veteran guard, will be playing his last collegiate basketball game. He has been a four-year letterman in basketball at St. Joe. Mauri tallied for 22 points against Valpo in the last contest between these two teams.

Coach Ellis, of Valpo, hopes that his team will play as good a game Friday as they did in the first frame of the initial meeting this year when they held St. Joe to a one-point lead. The second-half spurt put on by the Pumas decided that game in their favor 65-44.

Pumas Are Favored
Although the Pumas are favored to win this game, because of the inexperience of the Uhlans squad, the keen rivalry always shown by these two schools may cause an interesting contest.

Paul Meadows, who scored 18 points against the Collegevillers in their last encounter, may cause the Pumas some trouble again. He has been a constant threat against most of his opponents this season.

Announce Schedule For Baseball Season

Prospects for a successful baseball season appeared fairly bright as spring practice in the form of conditioning exercises began last week in the fieldhouse.

Competition will be keen for every berth as approximately ten veterans will be hard-pressed for varsity positions by a promising group of determined and enthusiastic newcomers.

Returning lettermen for pitching duty are: Mauri Gutsell, a senior playing his fourth year of college baseball; and Bill Shine, with two years' experience. Connie Vanderkolk, an outfielder, will divide his time between pitching and the outfield, as will Gutsell. Other veterans are Bill Gladen, John Boyle, Stan Lapsys, Tony Ponzevic, Chuck Lewandowski, Don Clark, Stan Wisniewski, and Bob Verpaele.

Following is the Puma baseball schedule for the coming season.

March 30, 31, and April 1, at Purdue; April 2, 3, and 4, at Indiana U.; April 11, at Central Normal; April 15, Illinois Wesleyan; April 18, Wabash, there; April 21, Central Normal; April 23, Wabash, there; April 25, doubleheader at Butler; April 28, at Indiana State; May 5, at Earlham; May 7, at Chicago Teachers; May 9, doubleheader, Butler; May 11, Indiana State; May 13, at Illinois Wesleyan; May 15, Manchester; May 23, DePauw.

Richard Of Bordeaux Has Mood Creation Problem

Many things seemingly unimportant will play very necessary parts in the forthcoming C.L.S. production of "Richard of Bordeaux."

In order to sustain the various moods of the play, recordings will be played from backstage—recordings of little known music, so that the music will attract no attention to itself. The selection will include numbers by Prokofieff, Strauss, Elger, and Tschalkovsky.

Besides this background music the director, Father Speckbaugh, is planning the opening of the play with a prologue over a public address system. This prologue will acquaint the audience with the historical setting of the plot of "Richard of Bordeaux."

He is planning also to use lights to help create various moods.

Advertising Is Essential Says Colonel McCormick

Robert R. McCormick, editor of the Chicago Tribune, in an address entitled, "The Newspaper and the News," injected the following word on advertising: "... the public will buy a newspaper for its news and features and then scrutinize the advertisements but will not accept as a gift a publication composed exclusively of advertisements."

If that statement is true (and it is) in a big city like Chicago, it is equally true in a small town like Rensselaer and its suburb, Collegeville.

The question: Do the Collegeville readers of STUFF scrutinize the advertisements in their paper, advertisements for the most part inserted by nearby Rensselaer merchants, who have a right to expect a reasonable profit on their investment?

There is some foundation for the statement that residents of St. Joseph's not only do not scrutinize the ads but that they do not even look at them.

No far-reaching investigation has been made, it is true; however, a few test cases have been employed both on the campus by the editors and in town by one or two merchants.

Advertising has fallen off from a generous high of more than sixty inches to a staggering low of thirty-eight inches in the issue of February 19.

In so far as campus readers are at fault for this, every one of them has this practical reason for going to advertisers to make his purchases: these advertisers have helped in the past to keep the price of subscription down. They will continue to do this if after reading their ads you use them for your guide when making purchases.

I-M Engagements

Here are the results of last week's Intramural cage contests:

In Seifert Hall, McKenna nosed out Runchey in an overtime, 31-29. This was the playoff of a previous game protested by Runchey. Runchey then whipped Piotrowski, 55-23. Feicht, after beating Piotrowski, 28-24, lost to Bullock on a forfeit.

Bissler of Noll took a pair of games from Ploszek, 25-20 and 40-29.

In the only inter-hall tilt of the week, Drexel licked Xavier, 41-29.

Hoffman And Gutsell Are On Indiana All-Conference

Two St. Joe cagers, Bernie Hoffman and Mauri Gutsell, both of Jasper, Ind., were named among the ten best basketball players in the Indiana Conference in a poll conducted by Luke Walton, sports announcer for station WISH, Indianapolis.

The voting was done by the coaches of the Indiana Conference. The selections were as follows:

Classify Fossils After Three Years' Searching

After three years of collecting in the strip coal mines in the vicinity of Braidwood and Wilmington, Ill., the Rev. C. F. Nieset, C.P.P.S., instructor of geology, announces a classification of approximately one hundred, and fifty individual remains of fossil plants.

These areas are internationally known for their concretions containing fossils of the extinct scale tree fern which flourished during the Pennsylvanian Period over 200,000,000 years ago.

Included are roots, impressions of leaves and stems of the scale tree, the foliage of the immense ancestors of the diminutive equestrian, and other extinct members belonging to the plant phylum, pteridophytes and spermatophytes.

Likewise added to the department have been a number of new books which are intended to be used as references in the survey course in Earth Sciences to be taught during the semester. These books deal with astronomy, meteorology, geography, geomorphology, earthquakes, glaciology, cartography, and agronomy.

Honorary Alumnus Misses Death In Philippines War

Chaplain John A. Wilson, C.P.P.S., honorary alumnus of St. Joseph's college and Captain in the United States Army, serving in the Philippines, had a narrow escape early in the war on the Bataan Peninsula. He was driving along when he saw men waving their arms, and, stopping his car, he jumped out. Father Wilson dropped into a ditch and saw dive bombers a few seconds later score nearly a direct hit, demolishing his car.

The Academy Corner

By Wehrle and McElroy

The Academy Cubs closed their '41-'42 cage season with 11 wins and 10 losses. Not bad, considering the lack of experience, heavy schedule, and other things.

Cap Brading led the Cubs in scoring with a 200-point total, or better than 9 per game. Bob Greene, one of the three vets from last year's team, ran second to Brading with 121 points.

Graduation will take three of this year's starters: Greene, Millae, and Schmelzer. Joe Joseph, consistent reserve, will also go with the June exercise.

Prospects for state title contenders next year look very promising to Coach Dick Scharf, with Richert, Leahy, Wunderlich, Kleine, McElroy, Meiners, and Latendresse returning in September.

Minute Observations: The Academy students wish to thank Earl Redden's father for the loyal support he gave the team down at Fort Wayne; Leo Moran has returned to the campus after a three-weeks illness; There will be a basketball elimination tournament throughout this week. It will be under the supervision of Coach Dick Scharf.

Ten Years From Now Jim Graham has successfully retained his state corn husking championship for the third consecutive year by defeating Phil Fitzgerald by an ear.

Gerald Leahy, Indianapolis playboy, has just announced his engagement to the heiress of the Rockefeller millions, Gloria Rockefeller.

Minute Observations: Larry Wapellhorst stoutly asserted in Fr. Roof's history class that Rome was in Germany. When reprimanded, Larry said, "I kinda thought it was in Italy." Shorty Redden has maintained an average of five points a game throughout the I.M. tournament. The opening of spring baseball saw Big Rich Latendresse out to captivate pitching honors. Joe Joseph seems to be all in a flutter about this Joan of Anderson.

Glancing around study hall we see — Frank Clark reading over some back issues of STUFF — Dick Herman with his desk lid up and a blank expression on his face — Bob McNamara studying American Hist. (n.b. Fr. Scharf) — Johnny Wunderlich working on the year book.

Camera Club To Tour Photo Shop Tonight

Tonight (Wednesday) the Camera Club is holding a special meeting. After the very brief business session, the members will tour the Photo Shop. The club moderator, Father Baechle, will act as guide.

The organization will be divided into small groups to enable them to get a better understanding of the operations of the shop.
